

Feature Story Julia Cain

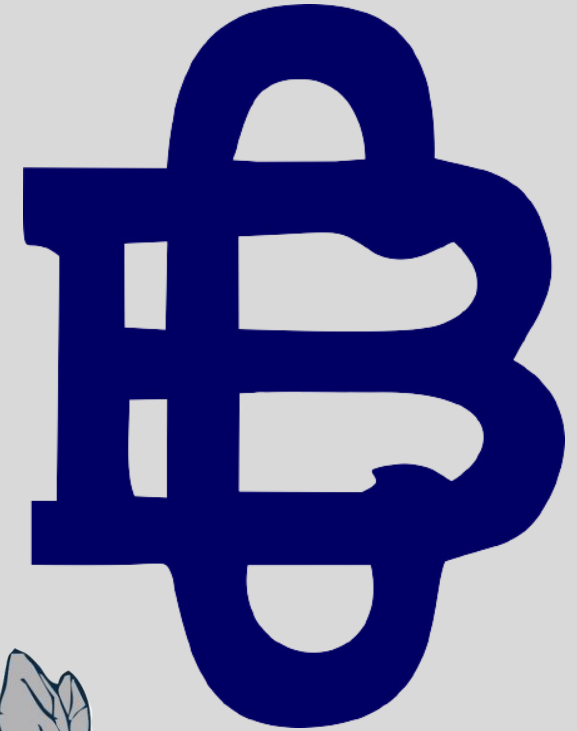

Julia Cain, a senior at Clay Battelle, plays wing or post for the Cee Bees Varsity Girls Basketball. Cain has been playing basketball for 6 years and is looking forward to her senior year. The 21-22 team consists of 10 players ranging from 9th-12th grade. One of their biggest challenges that face the team this season, Cain says, is that they are a young team. However, Cain claims that the team's biggest strength is that they're close and friends off the court too, unlike other teams. Cain's best advice for younger players is that they should condition during off season and listen to the advice from the older girls because they are only trying to help everyone improve. We are looking forward to cheering on Cain and the rest of the lady Cee Bees!

Current Events

This Saturday, December 4th, there will be a Christmas parade in Blacksville, West Virginia. The parade starts at eleven o' clock Saturday morning. It will start at the funeral home and end at Clay-Battelle Middle Highschool. Be sure to come out to see the Blacksville fire department, The Clay-Battelle Marching Cee Bees, and many others!

On Monday, December 6th, there will be another Christmas parade in Morgantown, West Virginia. It will start at 6:30 P.M., barring any delays. You can come out to support your Marching Cee Bees and stay to see all of the other exciting participants, such as the Morgantown Fire Department, the Local Car Club, and more.

Advice

Dear Abby,

I found out my best friend's boyfriend is cheating on her. I don't know what to do. Should I tell her? Should I confront him?

Sincerely Stuck-in-the-Middle Molly

Dear Stuck-in-the Middle Molly,

First, think about what you would want done if you were in our friend's shoes. You should explain what you know to your friend. Honesty is the best policy. She may then decide what she wants to do with that information. Just continue to be there for her and support her.
